For immediate release:

*The New Milford Film Commission to sponsor screening of:
The Six Wives of Henry LeFay*

The New Milford Film Commission is sponsoring a screening of the Tim Allen movie: Six Wives of Henry Lefay on Sunday, December 5 at 11AM. The movie, filmed in New Milford in 2008 was never picked up for theatrical distribution and went directly to DVD. However, many locals have been hoping to watch the movie on the big screen. The movie was filmed in and around the town green including the law offices of Allingham & Spillane, Tivoli's Restaurant, Main Street, and Bank Street.

The New Milford Film Commission, along with the Bank Street movie theater has coordinated with the film company to screen the movie as a fundraiser for a local charity - the New Milford Food Bank. There will only be one screening at 11AM. The entry fee will be $5 plus a donation to either the food bank or cash donations to the fuel bank.

Suggested food bank donations include: peanut butter & jelly, pasta/sauce, boxed meals (mac & cheese), canned (soups, tuna, fruits & vegetables), cereals, cookies & crackers, school snacks (fruit roll-ups), condiments, shampoo & conditioner, paper goods, and cleaning supplies.

Keli Solomon, chairman of the film commission is hoping for a sold out performance.

There is limited seating, so please reserve you tickets in advance by calling (860) 210-2099. The film is rated PG-13.
